

It is a mistake to increase the allowable percentage of one media company in a single market. The public airways should represent a diversity of programming and opinions and one way to facilitate that is to keep any one company from obtaining a near majority of broadcast outlets.

Additionally, the public should have the opportunity to comment on the specific wording of a proposed rule change. To my knowledge, the wording has not been made public. The FCC is a government organization. Government is created to serve the public. One serves the public by first listening to what the public desires.
